

trolley.ai

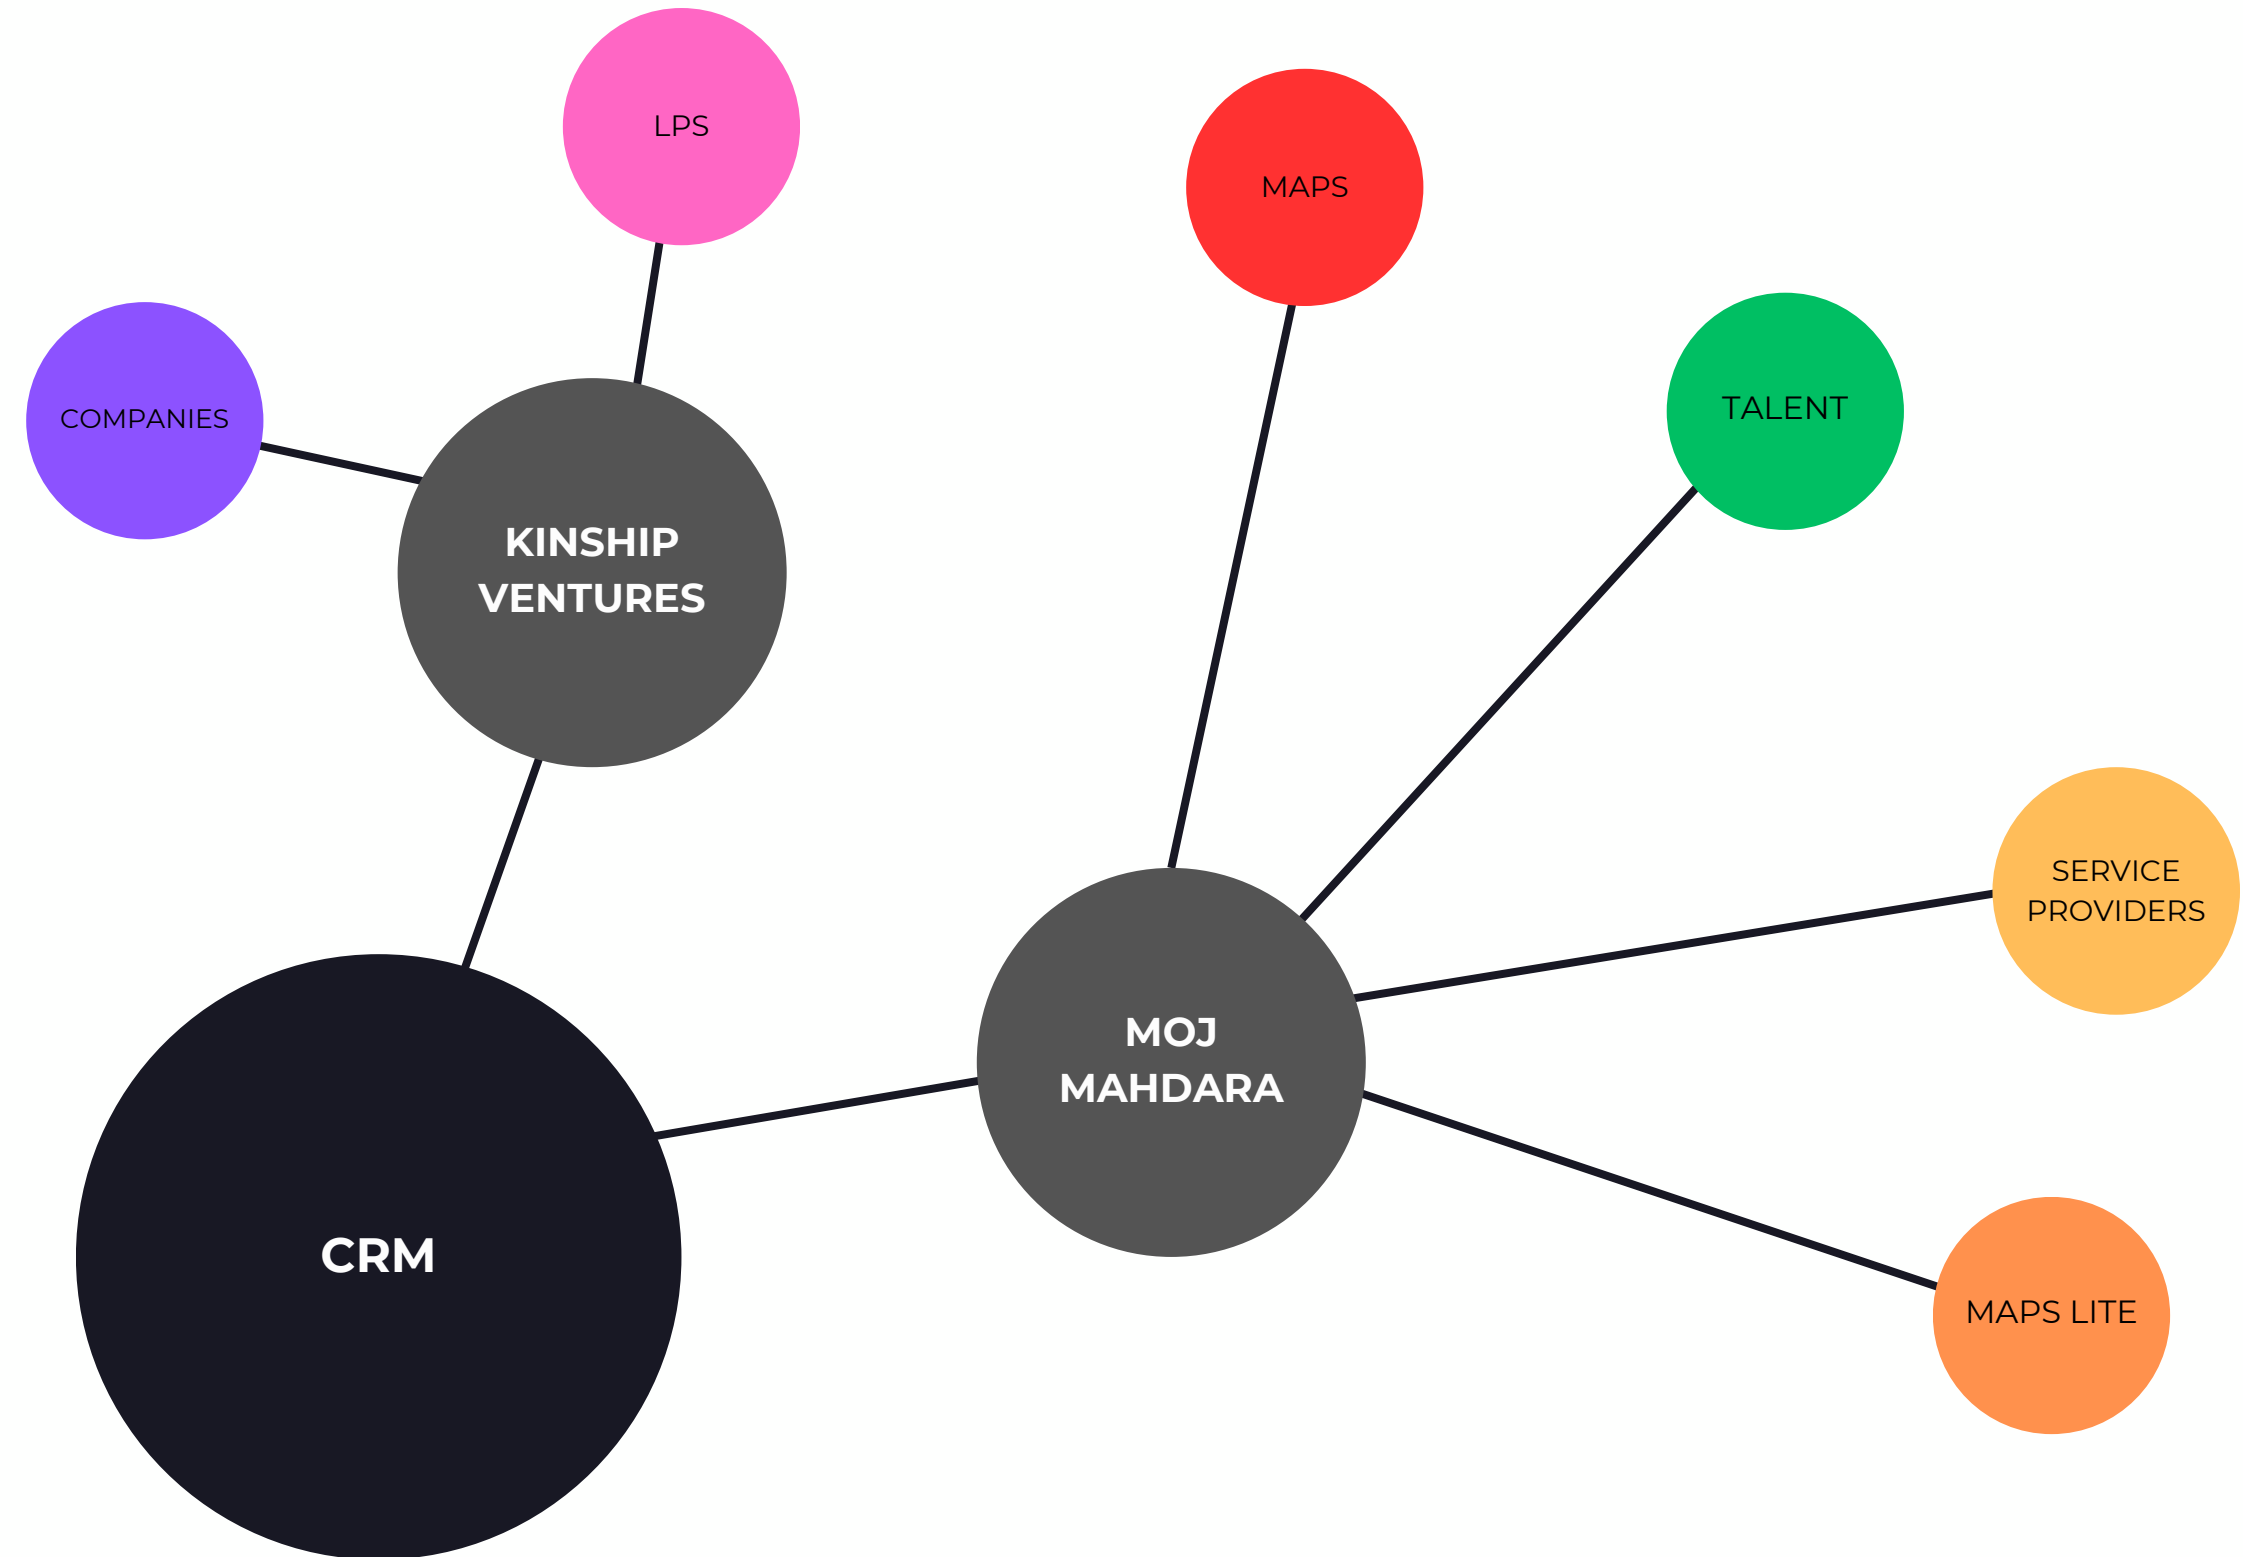

CRM Breakdown

About our CRM

Our CRM lives in Click Up and is made up of several lists. The diagram at right gives an overview of the number of lists we have, and subsequent pages breakdown the makeup of these lists in further detail.

Additional documentation, including detailed instruction on how to maintain each lists, SOPs, source files, etc., can be found inside of the Company Wiki in ClickUp.

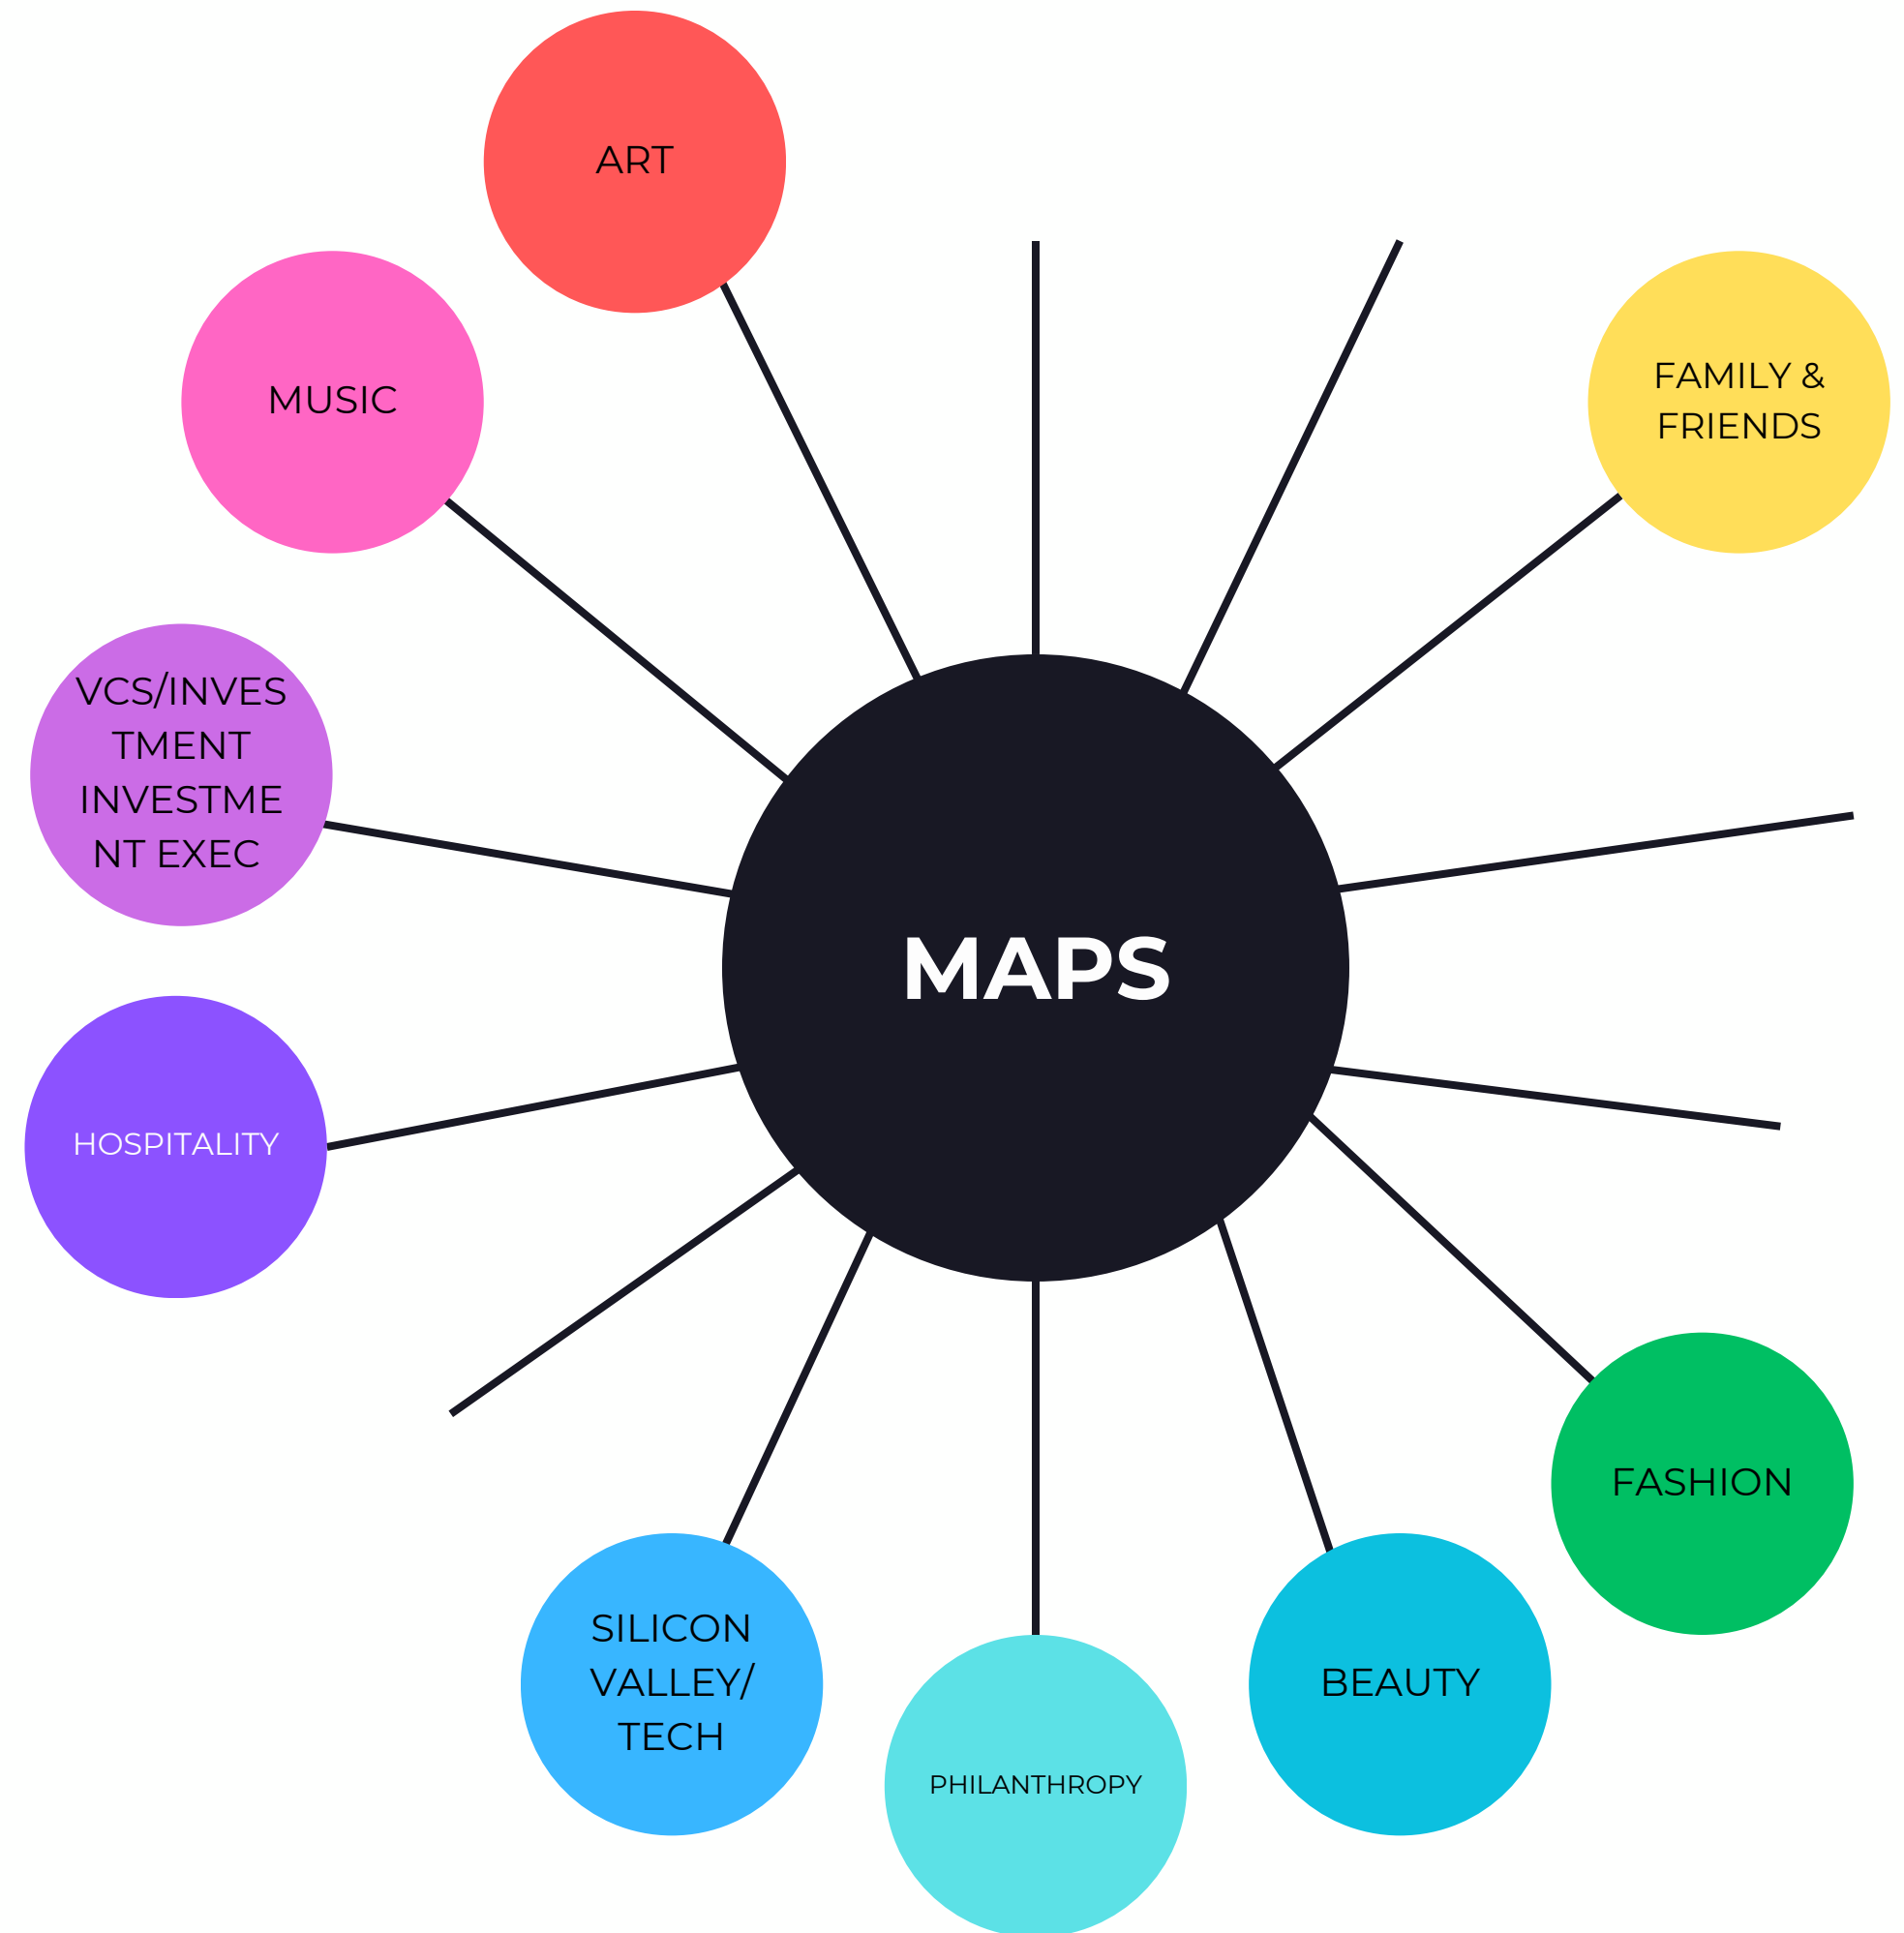

MAPS

Core connections who actively support and expand business opportunities, even independently of Moj.

We refer to this list when we need help from people in certain industries. This list also refers to people that Moj must always be in contact with. This list is more than transactional, building and establishing strong relationships is the core of Maps.

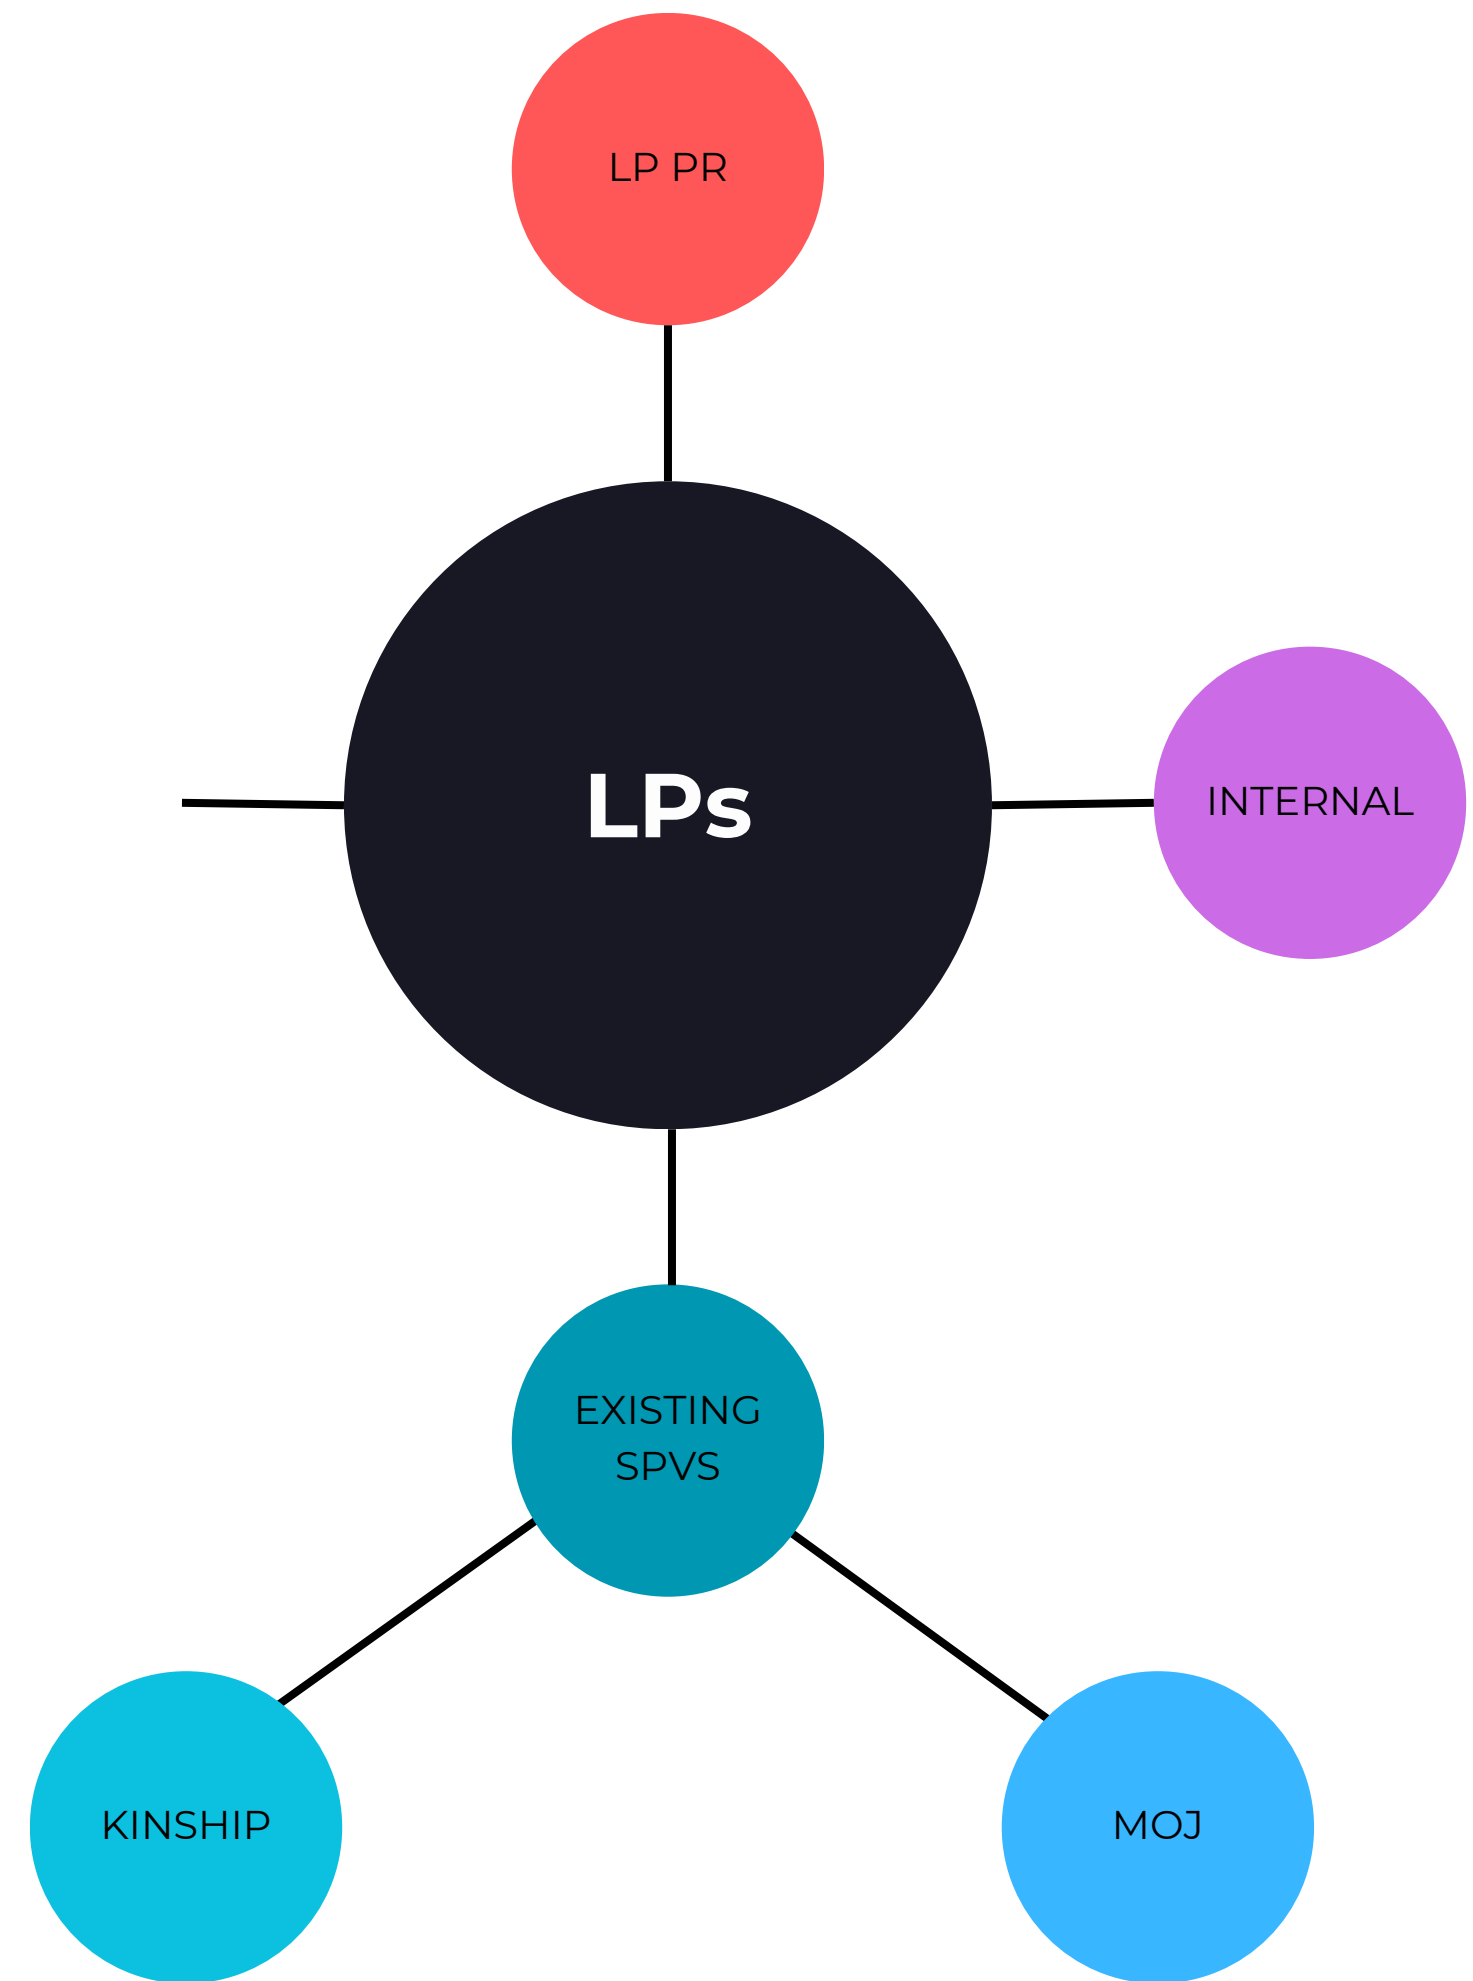

Maintaining connections with people on this list is essential because they are trusted allies who bring long-term value, insight, and collaboration opportunities. These relationships are the foundation for fostering mutual growth, opening doors to new ventures, and ensuring Moj remains deeply connected to the industries and networks critical to her success.

LPs

Primary Owner: Mara Sy (Relationship Manager)

A curated list of high-potential investors or partners with the potential for collaboration or investment in Kinship Ventures.

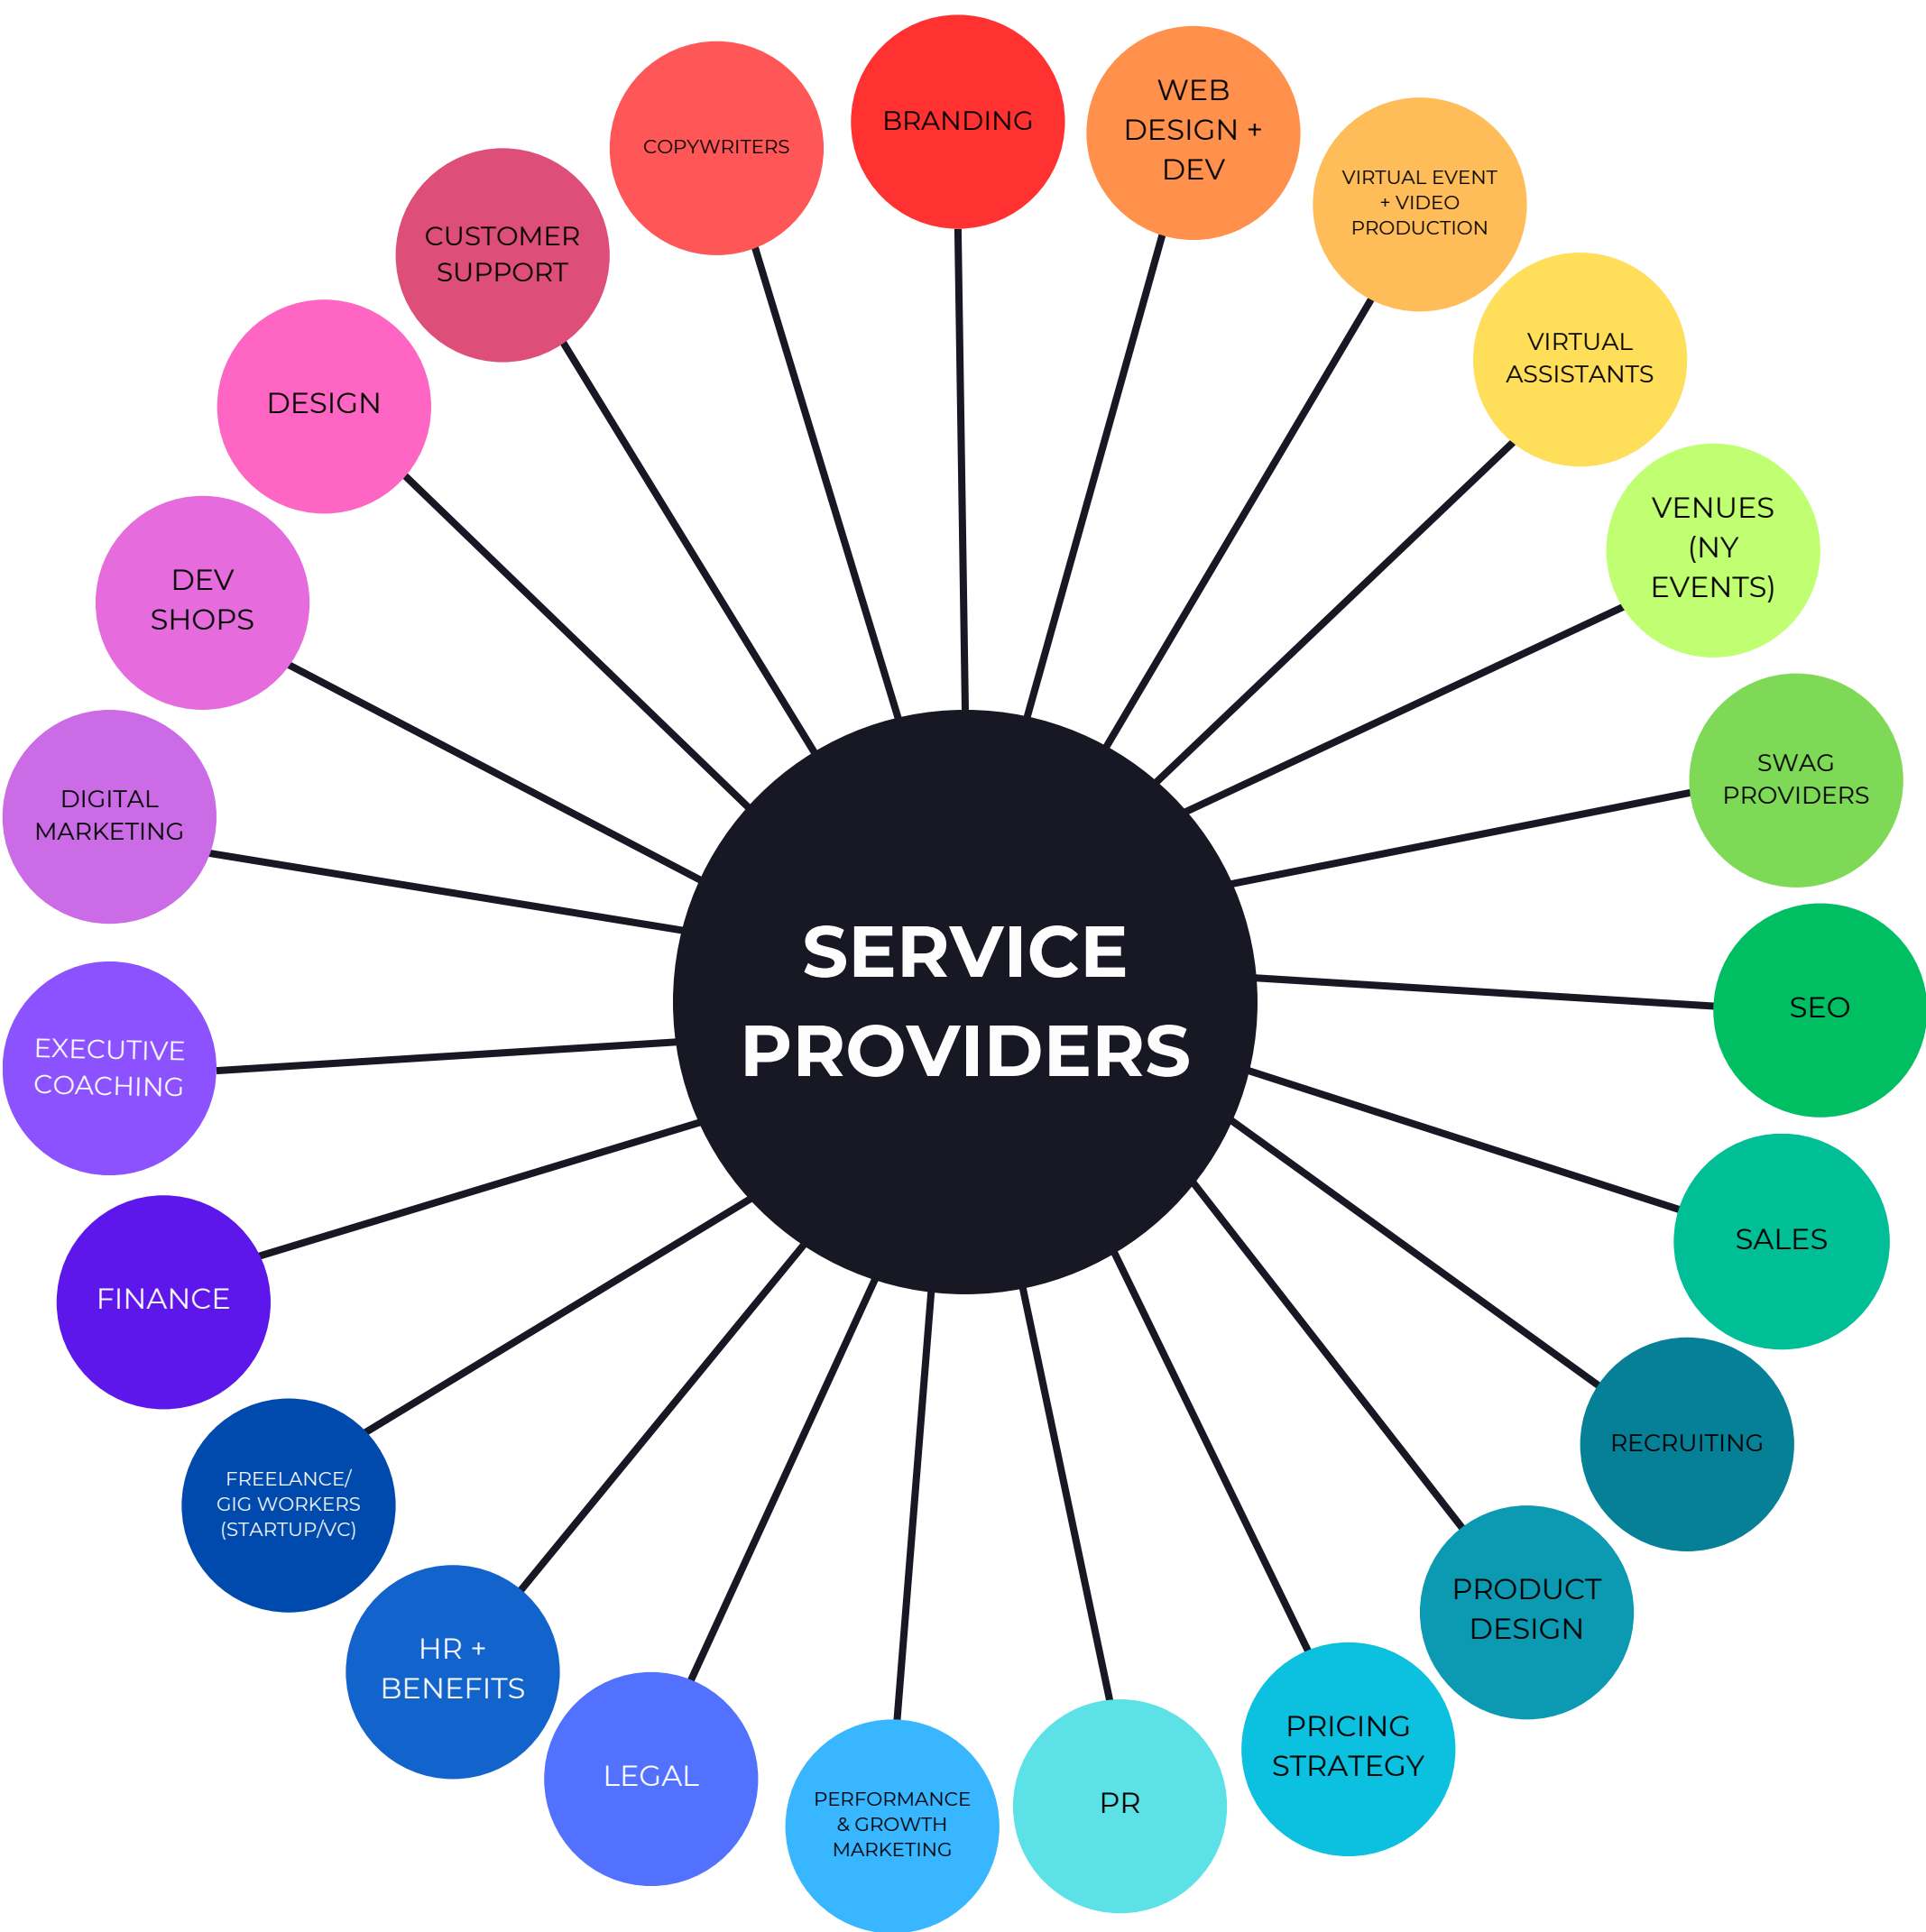

Service Providers

Primary Owner: Operations Manager

A list of vetted service provider resources (consultants, contractors, agencies), across industries.

We use this list when we need a vendor to provide services, or if a colleague within our network needs a recommended service provider.

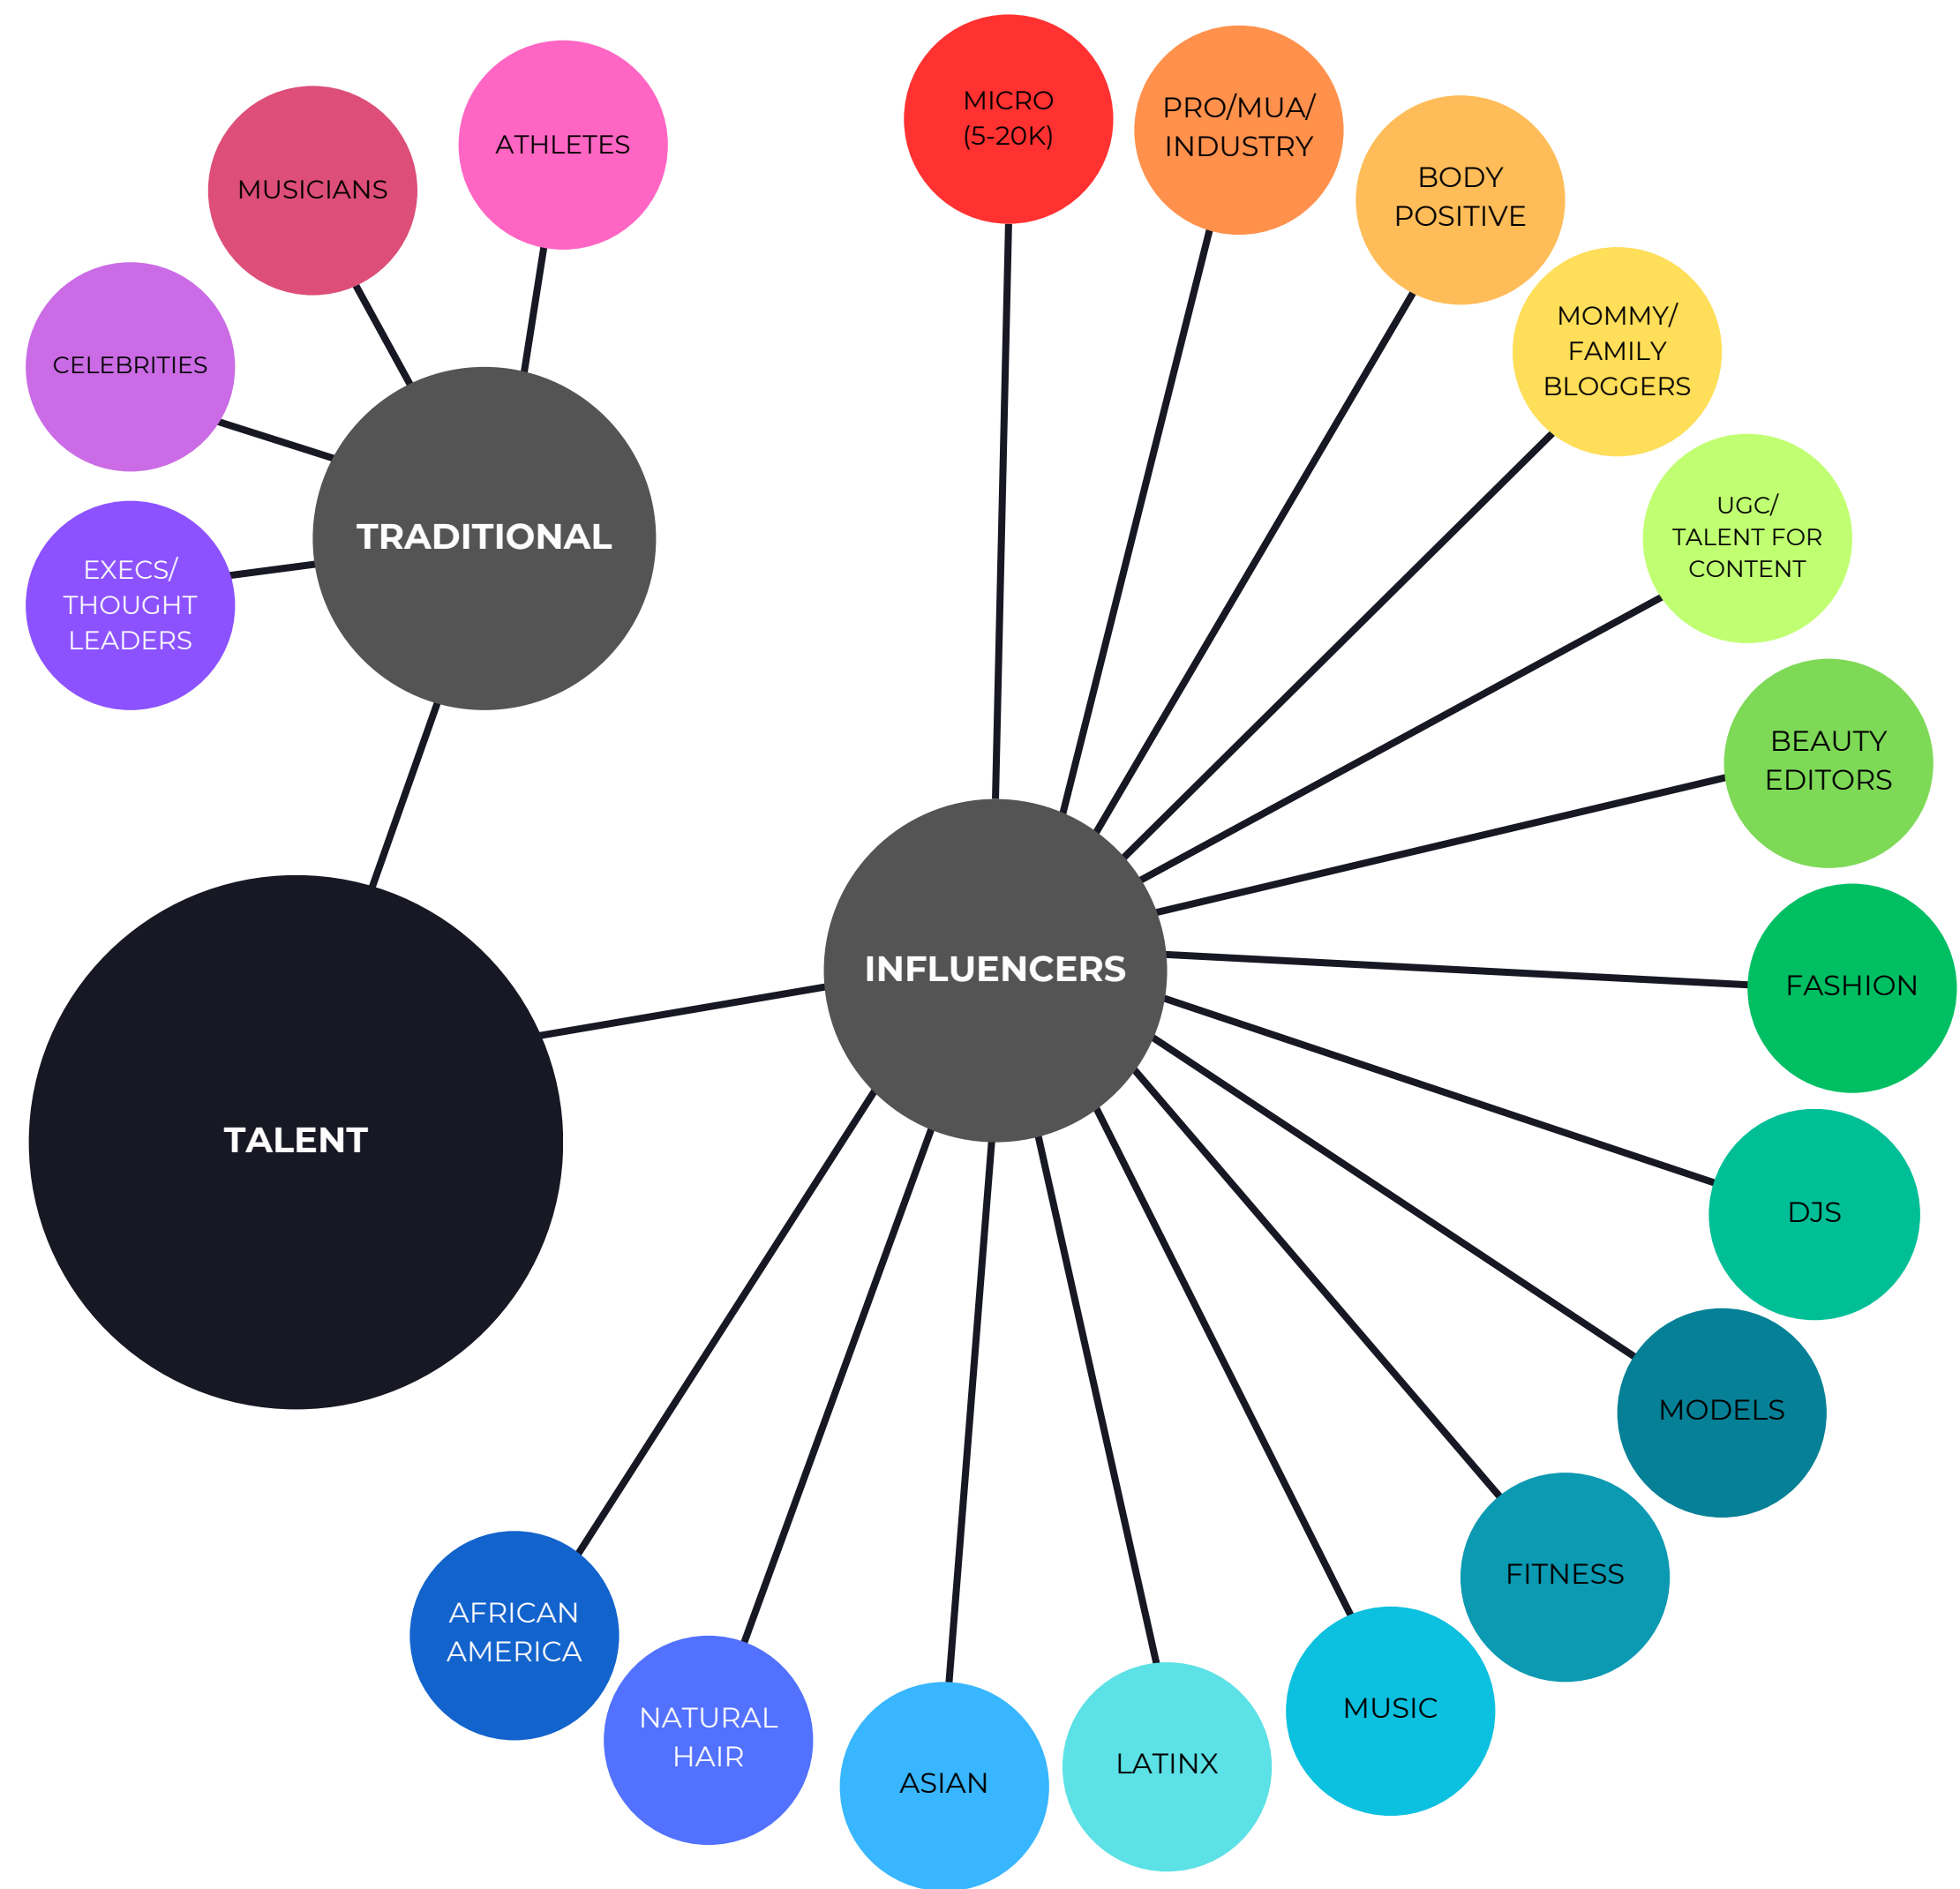

Talent

Primary Owner: Mara Sy (Relationship Manager)

Notable individuals for guest appearances, influencer posts, or promotional gifting.

We use this list when:

- We want to do a promotion and we'll need help with influencers to do this for us.
- Moj is asked by other companies for contact information about celebrities they want to send gifts or invites to.
- Moj wants to invite guests to her podcast - Reset the Algorithm

List Status

Last updated: 12/31/24, Mara Sy

	LIST NAME	# OF CONTACTS
MOJ MAHDARA	Family & Friends	7
	MM Professionals & Resources	29
	MAPS	489
	MAPS Lite	5,513
	Talent & Influencers	708
	To Be Sorted	137
	General	482
	Services for Founders	1,459
KINSHIP VENTURES	LP ABG	60
	LP Internal	128
	LP PR	82
	Pipeline	8
	SPV	82

trolley

About Maps

Why MAPS?

IF YOU DON'T USE YOUR CONTACTS, YOU LOSE THEM

This helps you track your interactions and make sure you're regularly reaching out to and engaging with your network. Mapping is like an automated rolodex.

FREE YOUR BRAIN

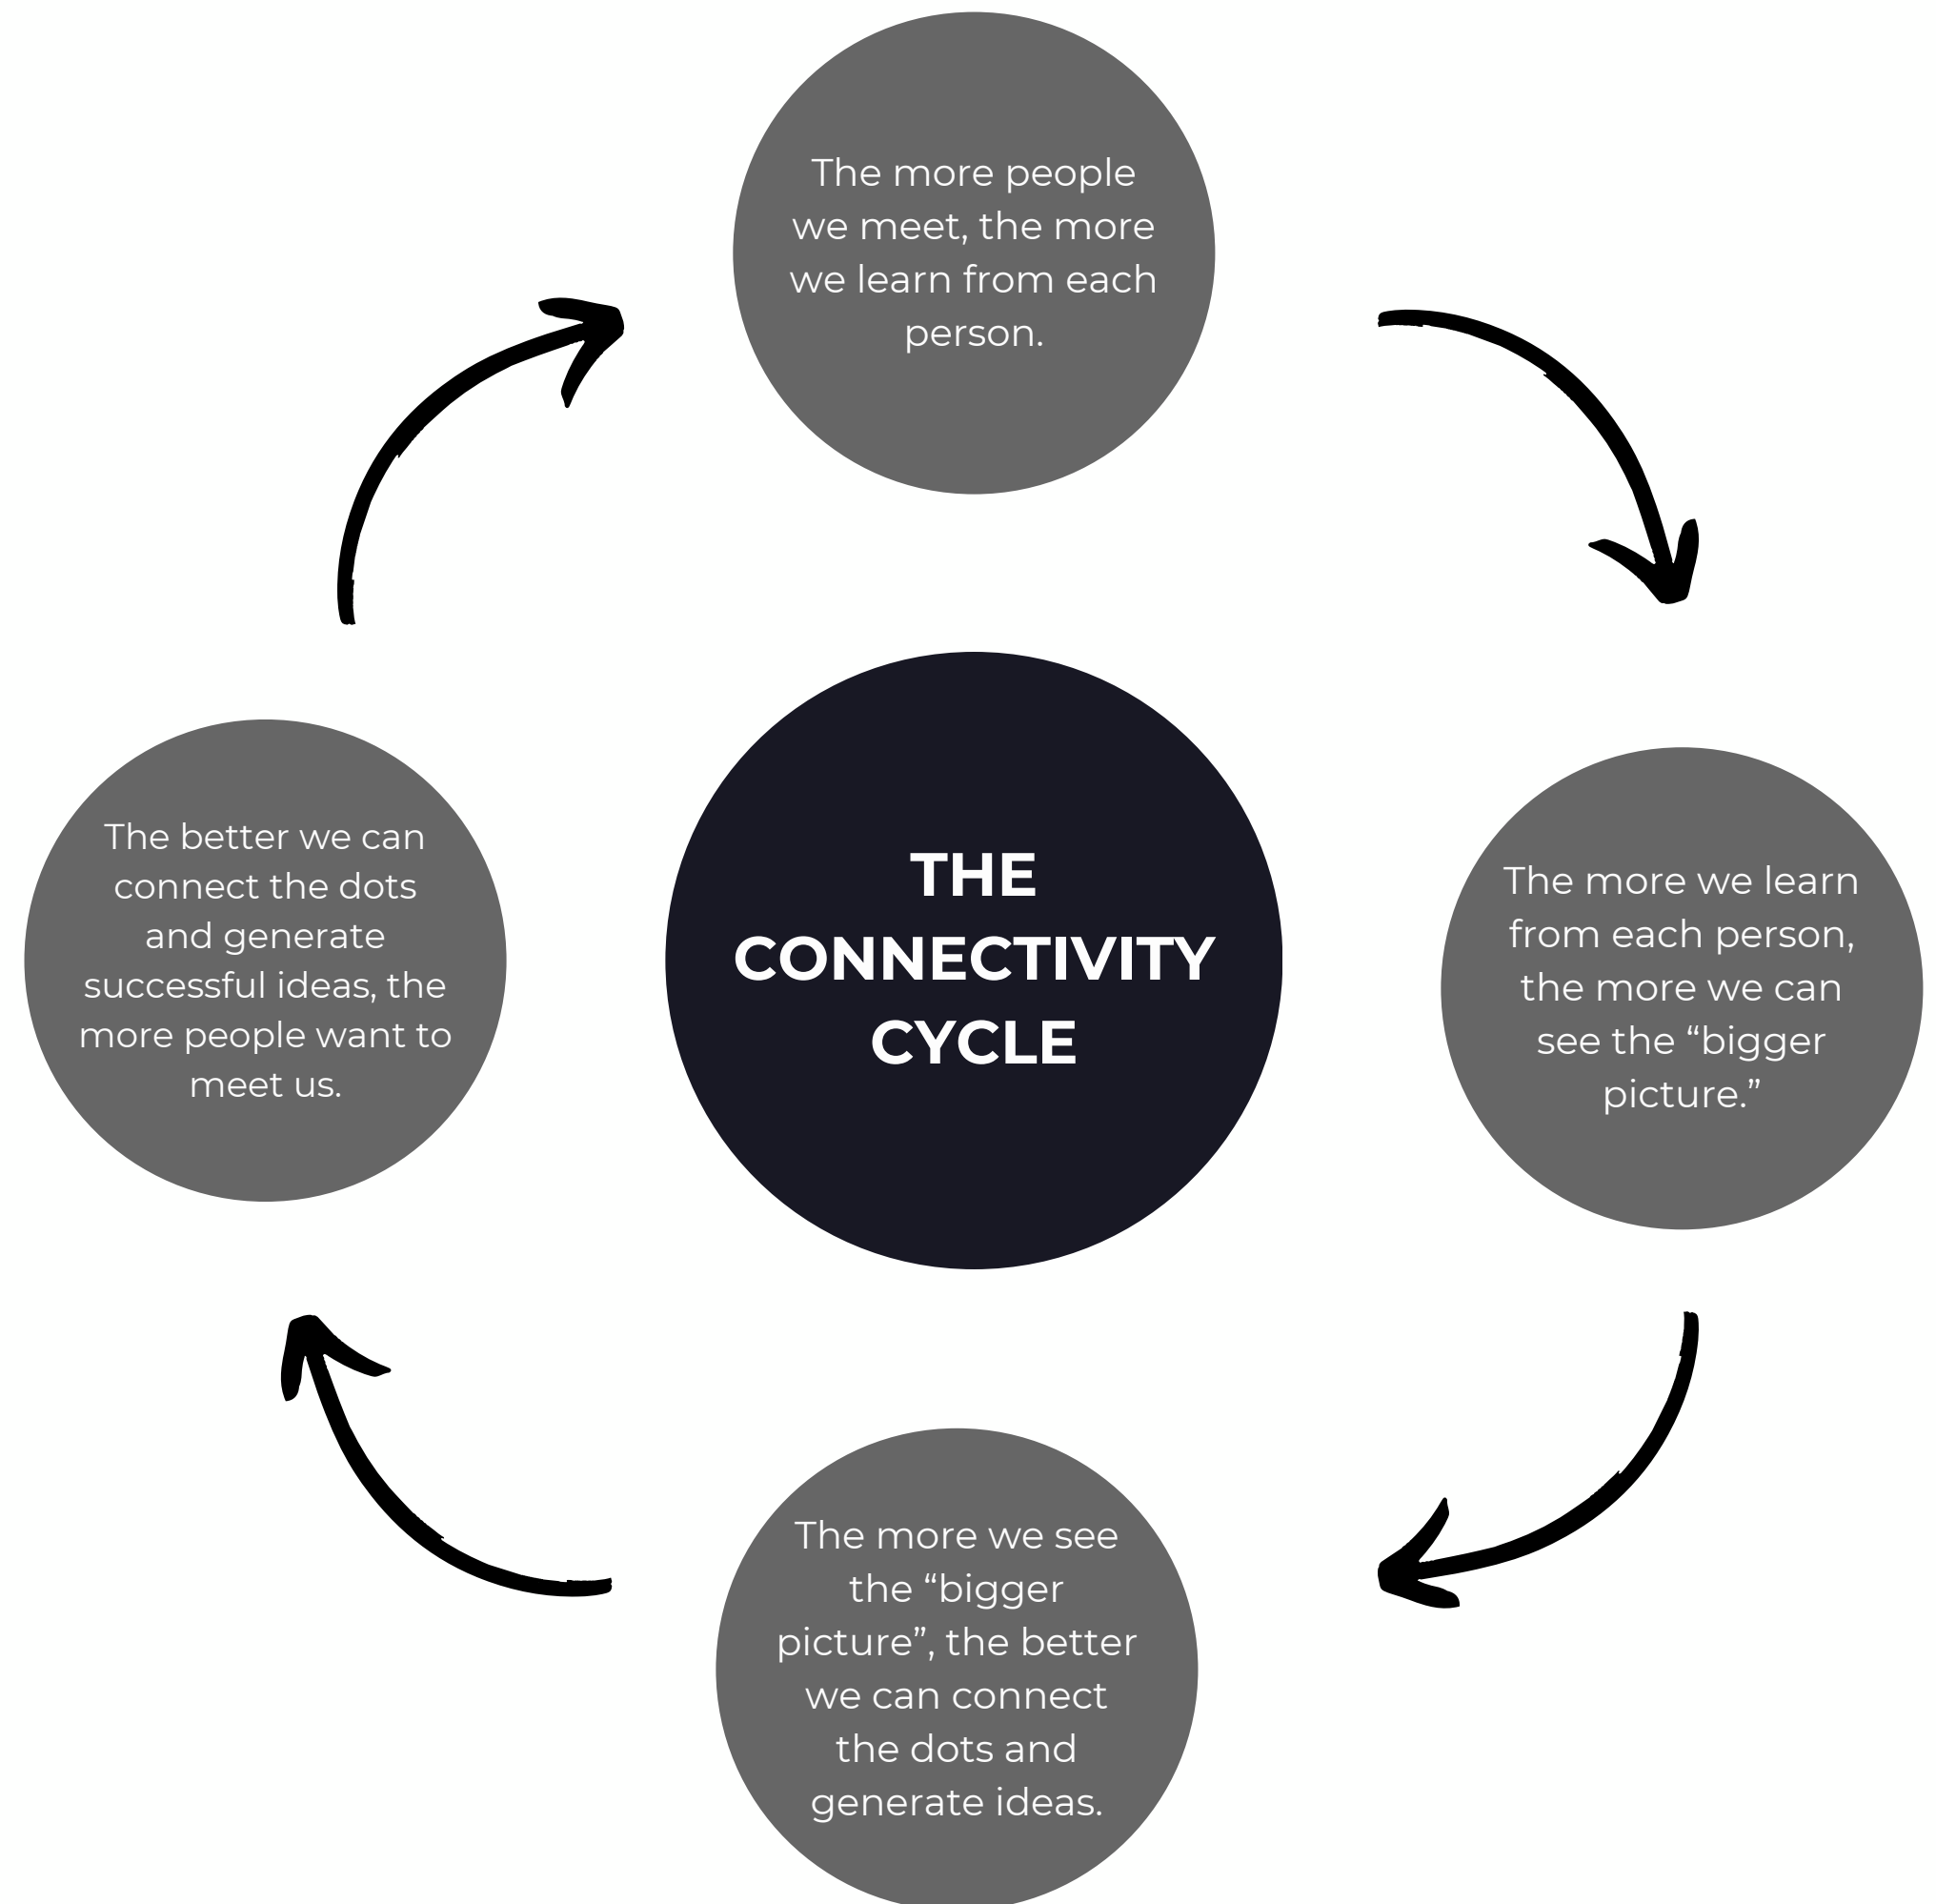

Use as a brainstorming tool when working on a project or creating an invite list. It's so easy to forget who you know. Don't tax your brain remembering — use that space for creativity!

RELATIONSHIP ECONOMY

Relationships are a two way street. Mapping helps connect the dots to bring value to your contacts in addition to helping you move forward.

THE CONNECTIVITY CYCLE

At right

Why MAPS?

“A NETWORK OF LOW-STAKES CONNECTIONS FURTHER ENMESHERS US IN OUR COMMUNITY.”

“WEAK TIES ARE THE ONES THAT WIDEN THE PLAYING FIELD”

“REGULARLY INTERACTING WITH PEOPLE WHO HAVE DIFFERENT EXPERIENCES THAN WE DO ALLOWS US TO BE MORE MINDFUL...”

“...LOW STAKES FRIENDS HAVE A LOT TO OFFER, AND [HELP US] UNCOVER SURPRISE TIDBITS ABOUT THE REGULAR PLAYERS IN ONE’S LIFE.”

Full Article Here:

<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/05/06/smarter-living/why-you-need-a-network-of-low-stakes-casual-friendships.html>

The New York Times

Why You Need a Network of Low-Stakes, Casual Friendships

By Allie Volpe
May 6, 2019

“When I was laid off in 2015, I told people about it the way any good millennial would: By tweeting it. My hope was that someone on the fringes of my social sphere would point me to potential opportunities.

To my surprise, the gambit worked. Shortly after my public plea for employment, a friend of a friend sent me a Facebook message alerting me to an opening in her department. Three rounds of interviews later, this acquaintance was my boss. (She’s now one of my closest friends).

Think of the parents you see in the drop-off line at school. Your favorite bartender. The other dog owners at the park. The sociologist Mark Granovetter calls these low-stakes relationships “weak ties.” Not only can these connections affect our job prospects, they also can have a positive impact on our well-being by helping us feel more connected to other social groups, according to Dr. Granovetter’s research. Other studies have shown weak ties can offer recommendations (I found my accountant via a weak tie) and empower us to be more empathetic. We’re likely to feel less lonely, too, research shows.

A 2014 study found that the more weak ties a person has (neighbors, a barista at the neighborhood coffee shop or fellow members in a spin class), the happier they feel. Maintaining this network of acquaintances also contributes to one’s sense of belonging to a community, researchers found.”

MAPS

How to get started

Print the VIP template (at right) and start writing on it. Fill up the page with your strongest contacts in each industry.

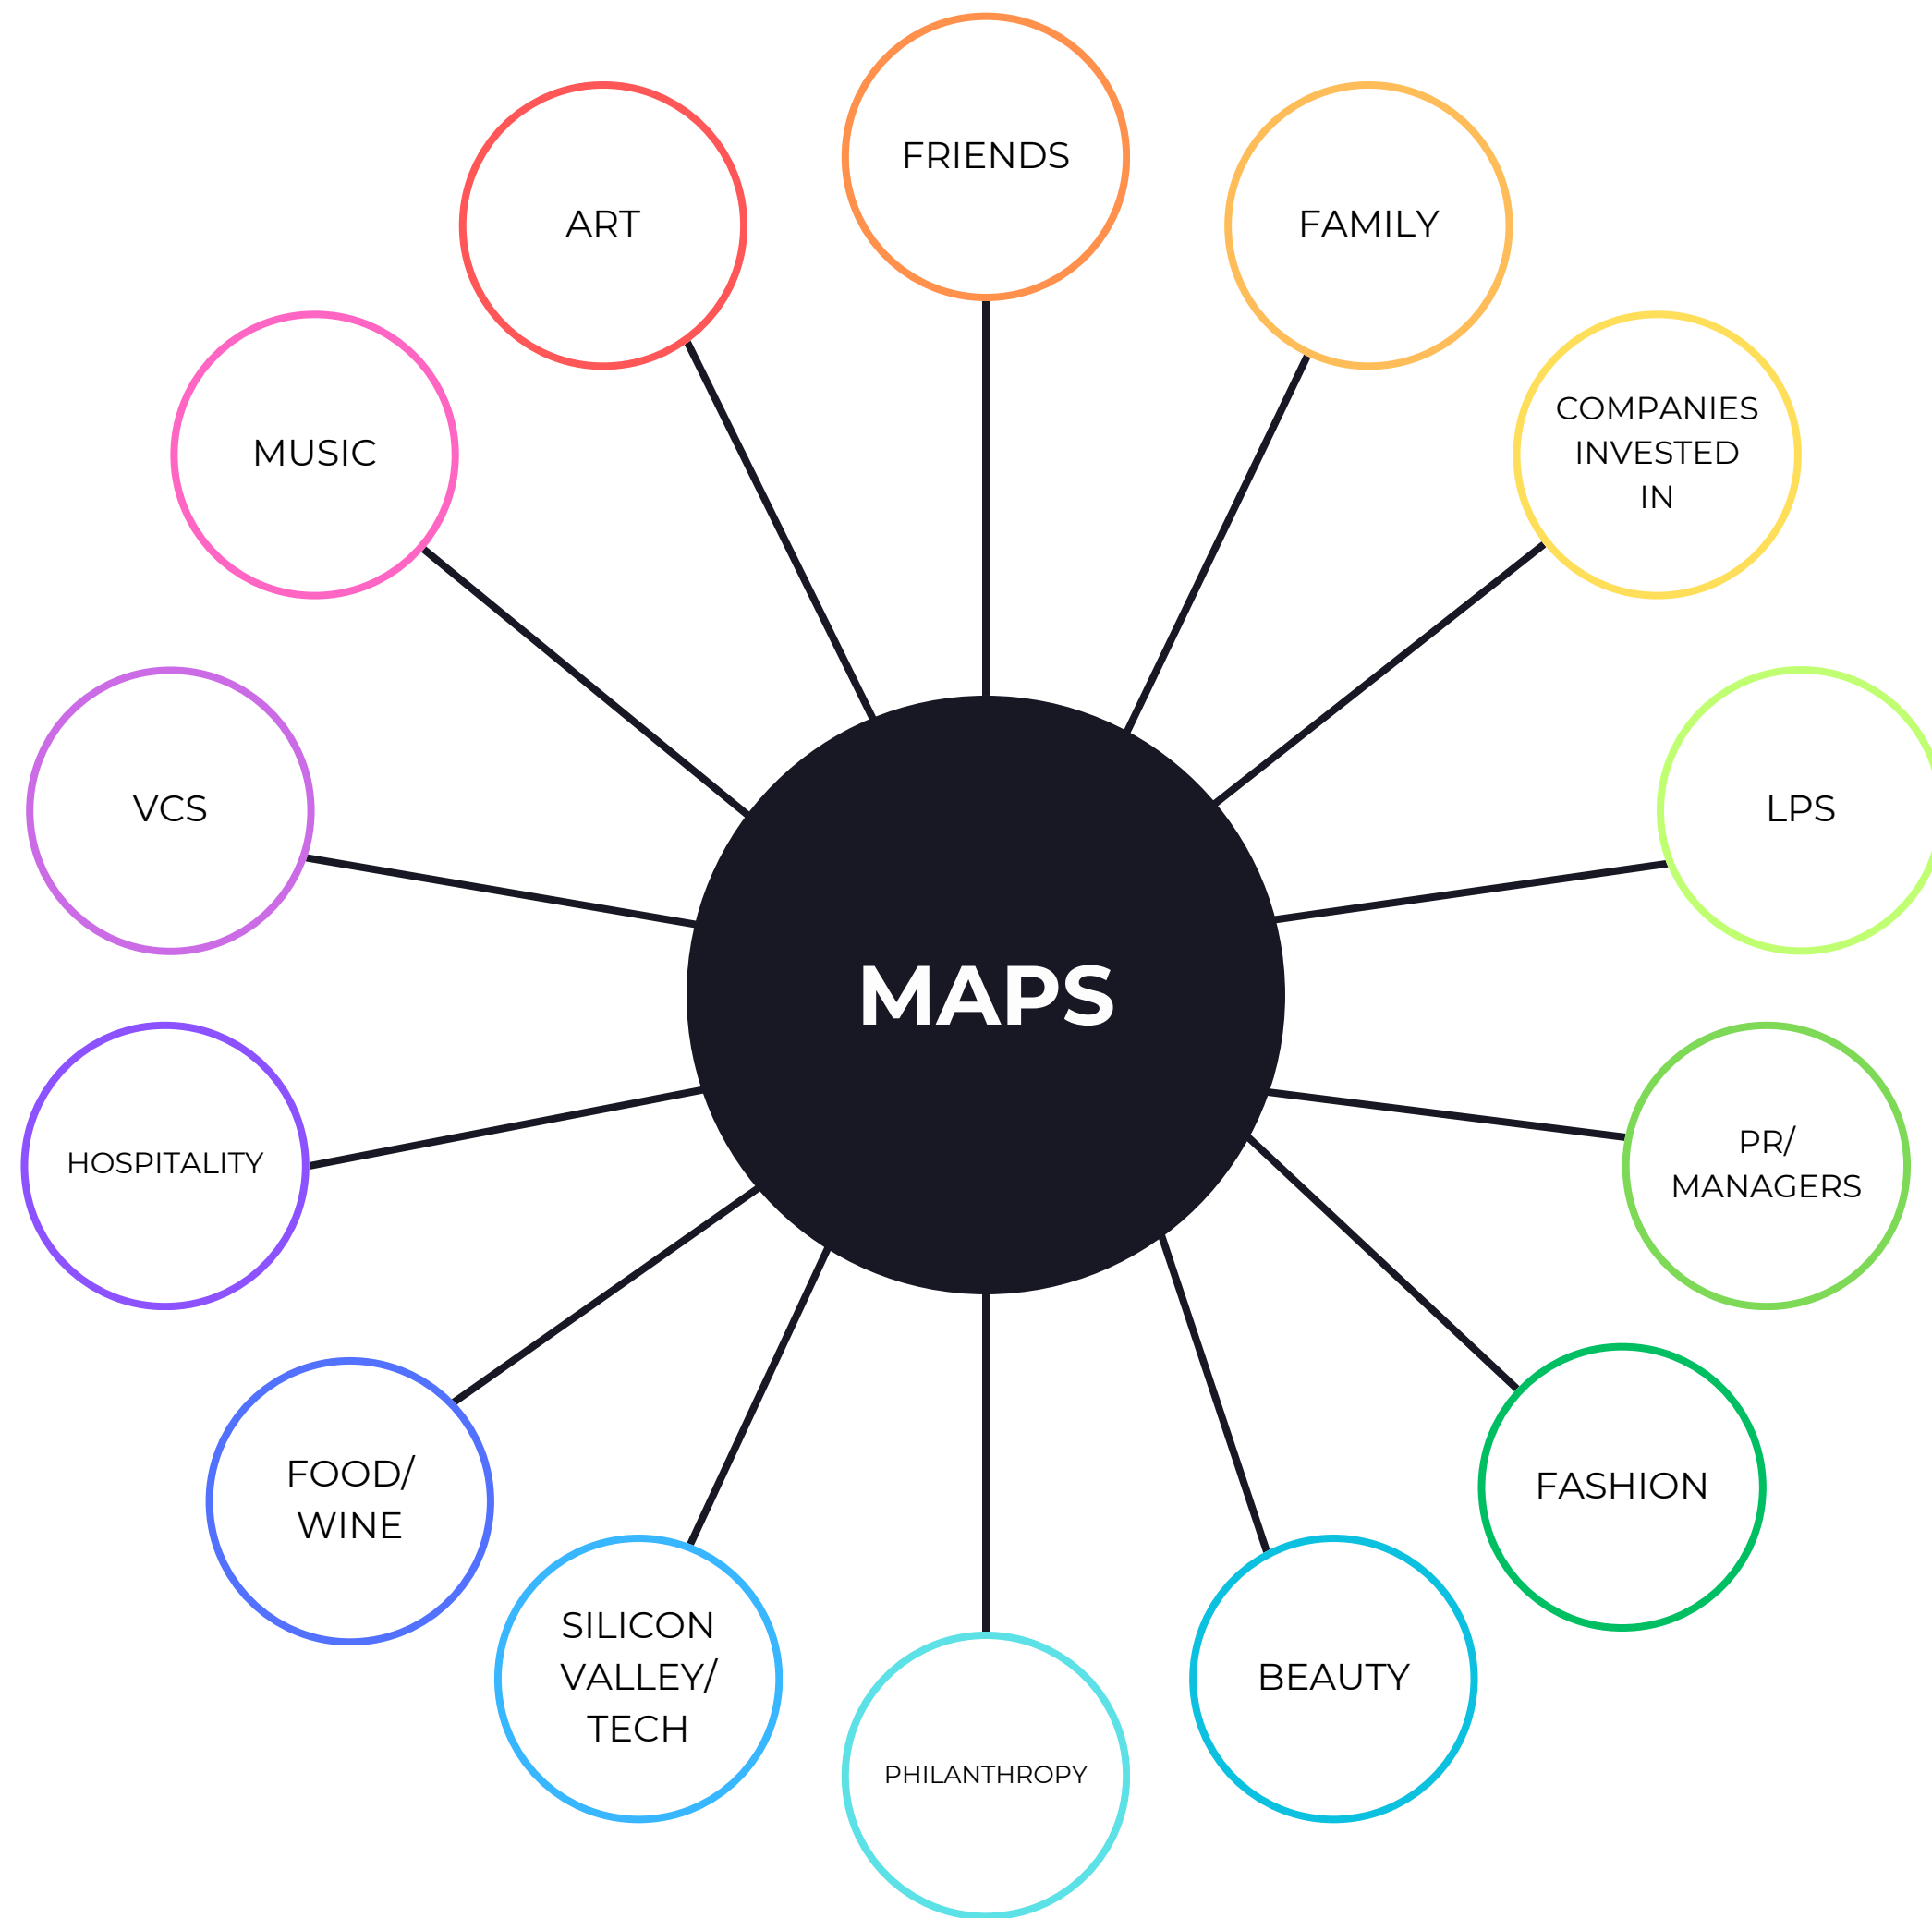

Once that's complete...

Think of another 20-30 people you can add now that you see it all put together.

Pick 14 contacts that are your "YOU Inc. Board." These are people you can call anytime to get information, connect you with someone, etc. You want to make sure you're consistently reaching out to these people. Preferably no two in the same category.

Think of some of the "holes" in your network. Who are some reach people you want to get to know? Who are some contacts that you can ask for those introductions? You can add these to your bubbles and make a different colored ring around them.

Remember: Maps are living and breathing and need updating regularly.

MAPS

How to get started

Print the VIP template (at right) and start writing on it. Fill up the page with your strongest contacts in each industry.

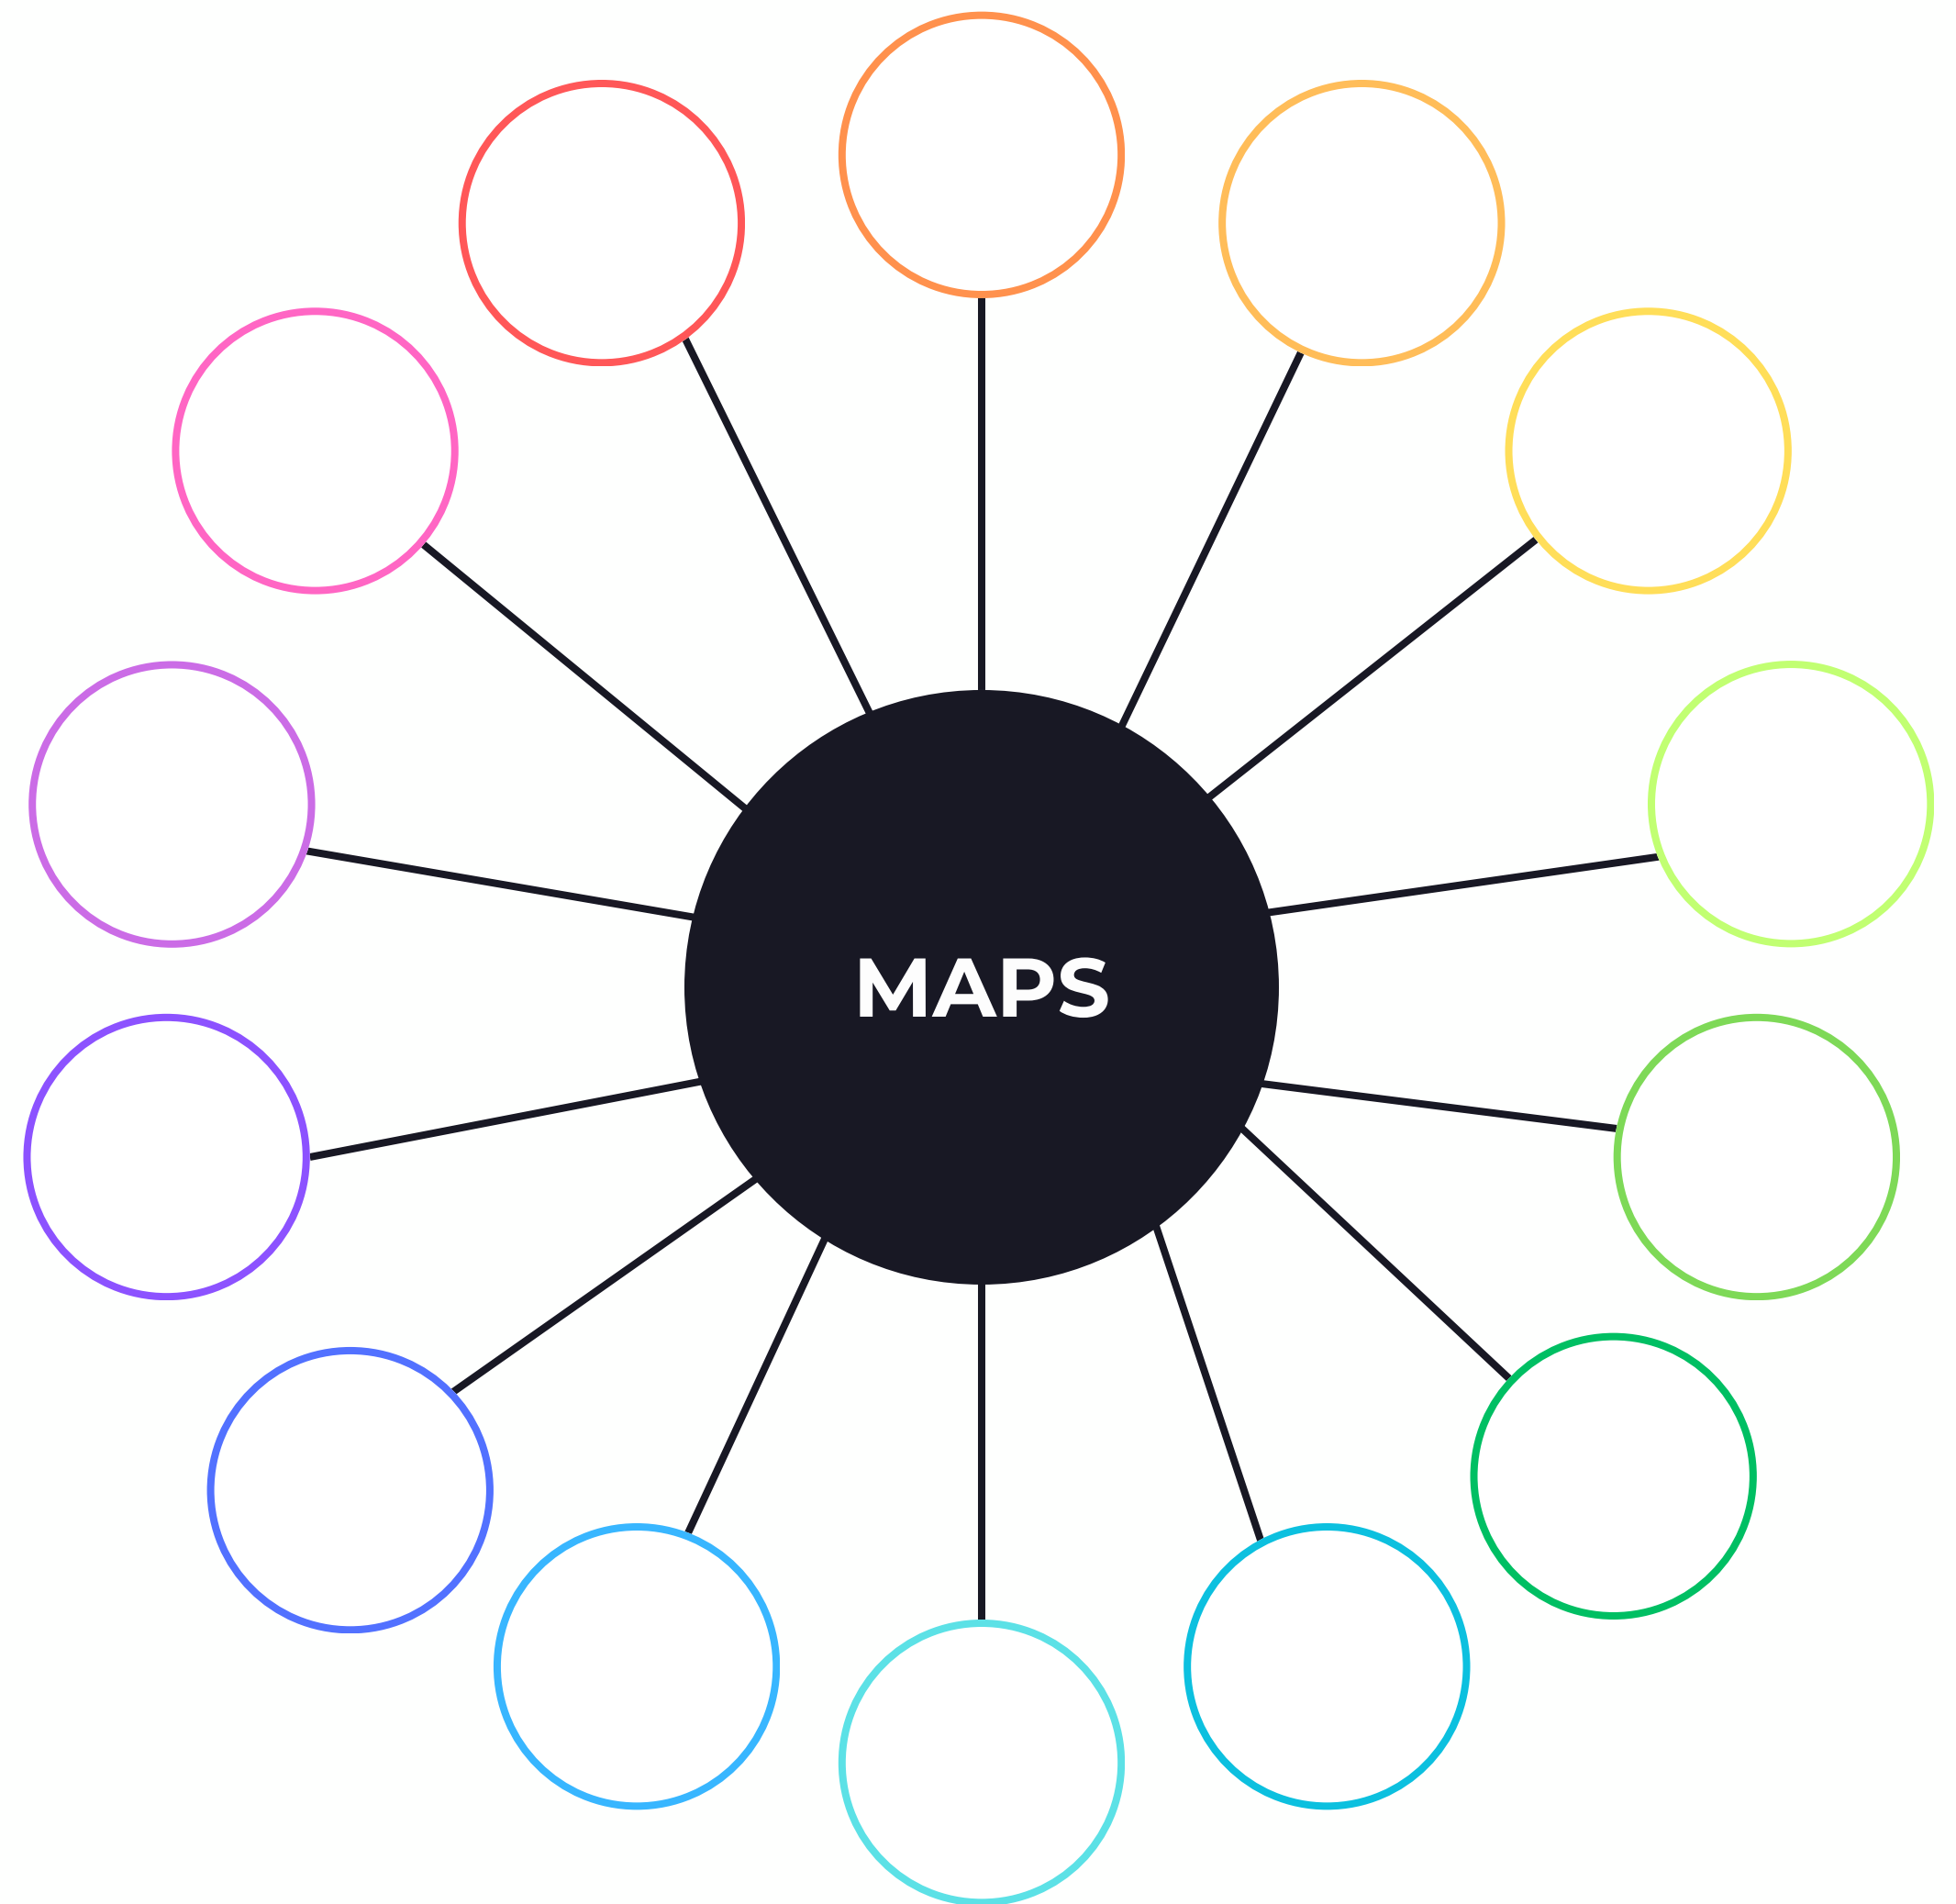

Once that's complete...

Think of another 20-30 people you can add now that you see it all put together.

Pick 14 contacts that are your "YOU Inc. Board." These are people you can call anytime to get information, connect you with someone, etc. You want to make sure you're consistently reaching out to these people. Preferably no two in the same category.

Think of some of the "holes" in your network. Who are some reach people you want to get to know? Who are some contacts that you can ask for those introductions? You can add these to your bubbles and make a different colored ring around them.

Remember: Maps are living and breathing and need updating regularly.

Maintenance

Print a paper version of your MAPS or enter into a CRM.

Each time you connect with a contact, put a little dot in the bubble or add to their contact record in your CRM. After the 10 week period, you can see all of the people you reached out to and it can help you target 10 calls to make and stay relevant in your other categories.

What's worth a dot in the bubble?

Anything from chatting with someone at an event, having a call or meeting, sending them an interesting article relevant to their business, retweeting something they've tweeted — all counts!

A COMPLETE SOP ON HOW TO MAINTAIN OUR CRM CAN BE FOUND IN THE COMPANY WIKI IN CLICKUP.

How we keep in touch:

- Monitor and keep track of special occasions, such as birthdays, personal or career anniversaries.
- Monitor milestones (launches, article features, awards, etc.) and send gifts or notes of congratulations.
- Send casual check-ins via text or email to maintain a connection.

How we monitor for updates:

- Add key dates into CRM and run monthly reports of upcoming dates
- Add Google Alert notifications for all MAPS members so we're immediately notified of key press or events
- Follow all MAPS on social media and monitor regularly for updates

How we clean up our list:

- Each month, do an in-depth review of 50 MAPS members to audit for continuation in MAPS. If a contact is removed, add a note to their record for why.
- The ideal MAPS list size is 150 contacts, with 10 contacts per category. Ensuring at least 10 people per category promotes a well-rounded network that supports all ventures. This balance helps avoid over-reliance on certain categories while neglecting others.

trolley

Thank you!

